Range Chapman attended Texas A&M University from 2018-2021. He graduated with a MART degree, his 3rd Mate Unlimited License, and was the youngest commissioned Naval Officer since World War II at a mere 20 years old.

Range was very involved with the university throughout his time at Texas A&M University at Galveston and carried those leadership traits when he began his career as a Merchant Marine Officer. Range began his career as a third Mate with Q-LNG, helping pioneer the first-ever US-flagged Liquefied Natural Gas carrying ATB.

Since then, Range has advanced his sailing career by working on an Offshore Supply Vessel and Subsea Construction Vessel to obtain his Chief Mate of Unlimited Tonnage License at 23 years old.

Range is a first-generation Aggie but a 3rd generation Mariner. After hearing enough unique and exciting stories regarding his time at Texas A&M, his younger sister is also creating her own memories in College Station and will graduate in 2026.
